No trash cans? This stinks!

- MTA mulls plan to remove trash cans from subway stations
- Transit agency tests theory that fewer bins will mean less trash, but riders say that's rubbish {pages 04-05}

Carriage horse collapses

A carriage horse collapsed and died Sunday on West 54th Street, renewing animal activists' calls to shut down the city's popular horse-drawn buggies. The horse, which died of unknown causes, collapsed as it trotted towards Central Park to begin a day's work. METRO/CB

Anti-sugar ads making TV debut

NEW YORK. Look for these public health ads from the city Health Department to pop up on TV stations in the next two months, as the city continues its war on sugar. The new ads describe how drinking just one 20-ounce soda a day translates into eating 50 pounds of sugar a year. Bilingual subway posters will also appear that show New Yorkers how far they need to walk (about three miles) to burn off the calories of one 20-ounce soda. METRO/CB

BX family: Cops tossed our pooch!

BRONX. A Bronx family filed suit against the city and the NYPD for what they allege is brutality against their dog. When police officers entered Ronald and Giselle Estevez's apartment during a drug raid last October, the family's seven-pound miniature Doberman-Pomeranian mix, Chuwie, was backhanded by a cop, alleges the family. Chuwie didn't try to bite the police, according to the suit, but only stood on the bed barking — until a police officer slapped him so hard he fell out a third-story window. It's a miracle the pooch survived, the Estevez family told the Post. METRO/CB

Weiner spent campaign cash

NEW YORK. Former Congressman Anthony Weiner spent $130,000 of his campaign money in the three months after he resigned. Weiner spent the loot on travel and legal fees. The beat goes on at Occupy Wall Street

Protesters say they are trying to be good neighbors to Lower Manhattan residents But some complain the loud, annoying drumbeats continue

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN/METRO

▶ Lower Manhattan residents say the daily drumbeats coming from the Occupy Wall Street camp are driving them crazy.

To the fury of Lower Manhattan dwellers, Occupy Wall Street protesters show no signs of putting away their drums.

Last week, protesters met with members of Community Board 1 to address noise complaints from residents who live near Zuccotti Park. CB1 drafted a resolution calling on protesters to limit loud noise, including drums, to two hours per day.

But their plea did not seem to make much difference.

Kelly Magee, communications director for City Councilwoman Margaret Chin, whose district includes Zuccotti Park, told Metro yesterday she still received calls from downtown residents complaining of eight hours of drumming on Friday and 11 hours of drumming on Saturday.

Hot line numbers

- Residents can e-mail OWS CommunityAffairs@gmail.com or call 917-524-7311.
- Small businesses can call 917-524-6845.

The Occupy Wall Street camp has established two phone numbers for residents and business owners to voice complaints. Eric Lazarus, a member of the OWS mediation team, answered the line for merchants on Monday.

He said he received fewer than 10 calls from businesses, with the biggest complaint being that protesters have been using restrooms without making purchases.

"This is an unusual situation in that all we have is the ability to say to our people, 'We would like you to be polite,' and tell them why it's important to be good citizens," said Lazarus.

Metro called the number designated for residents multiple times, but could only reach a voice mail greeting, which did not identify the line as associated with Occupy Wall Street.

Community Board 1 will meet again tonight to discuss the noise complaints.

Cuomo vs. protest

NEW YORK. The mayor of Albany defied instructions from Gov. Andrew Cuomo over the weekend to enforce an 11 p.m. curfew at a city park where Occupy Albany protesters are camped out.

Cuomo's press secretary reportedly called Albany Mayor Jerry Jennings to ask the state police to enforce the park curfew, and arrest protesters if they didn't leave. Jennings, however, refused to comply. METRO

MTA: IN

EMILY ANNE EPSTEIN/METRO

▶ The MTA already nixed trash cans at two stations.

Pulling into the station: More L trains next year

NEW YORK. L-train riders, rejoice: More trains are headed straight to your station.

Beginning next summer, the MTA will increase subway service on the sorely-needed L line.

The MTA will add 16 trains to weekday service schedules. On the weekends, 11 trains will be added to Saturday's service and seven to Sunday's.

Riders on the popular line have repeatedly complained of crowded, infrequent and delayed trains.

"It's wall-to-wall people," said Alison Gartner, 35, a graphic designer who lives off the Graham stop. "We're trapped; we don't have any other way home."

State Sen. Daniel Squadron called out the MTA last month, demanding more service. He pointed to the fact that L-train ridership has increased by 141 percent since 1998.

L-train cars are currently packed to 110 percent capacity during morning commutes and 122 percent capacity during evening rush hour, according to MTA statistics.

TRANSIT

Transit agency tries experiment to reduce trash in stations ◐ More L trains on the way ◐ Get a new glimpse of Fulton Transit Center

Forget the trash. Now the MTA is taking out the cans.

Transit officials launched a pilot program two weeks ago to remove trash receptacles from the platforms of two subway stations.

The Eighth Street N,R stop and the Main Street stop on the 7 line will be free of trash cans for the next two months.

The MTA is trying the pilot to reduce the amount of litter in the subway system. The transit agency is testing the effectiveness of a "carry in, carry out" policy, similar to that of the PATH system, Tom Prendergast, the head of NYC Transit, said yesterday.

But riders dismissed the MTA's idea.

"We need trash cans in stations," said software developer Sam Napolitano, 30, who works near the Eighth Street N,R stop. "Otherwise, people will throw trash on the ground."

"If there's trash on the ground, there will be more rats," Nadjeda Estriplet, 23, a student at NYU said.

"I'm cynical of it working. If you don't have enough resources to keep the subway clean, even a ridiculous idea sounds good."
GENE RUSSIANOFF, OF THE STRAPHANGERS CAMPAIGN

"What if trash gets thrown on the tracks and catches fire?"

Currently, eight refuse trains traverse the tracks and pick up trash from 359 stations per evening. Less rubbish would require fewer trains, explained Gaito. But nobody is committed to the idea yet, he cautioned.

"It's just an experiment," said Gaito. "If it's successful, we'd look to branching it out."

Two possible solutions, he said, would be to remove trash bins entirely, or remove bins at stations with the fewest riders.

6 train derails

NEW YORK. Subway riders endured delays on the 4, 5 and 6 trains in both directions during yesterday's morning rush, after an uptown-bound 6 train derailed just before 4 a.m. There were no injuries reported in the derailment, which happened at the Brooklyn Bridge/City Hall station. Two cars on the train derailed and the subway was carrying 19 riders at the time. The cause of the derailment is under investigation. ● METRO/CB

Bus driver attacks up

NEW YORK. Attacks on MTA bus drivers are up 20 percent, according to a Daily News analysis of MTA data. Attacks are on the rise compared to last year and there are seven attacks on bus drivers every month, the paper found. Fight cancer one breath at a time

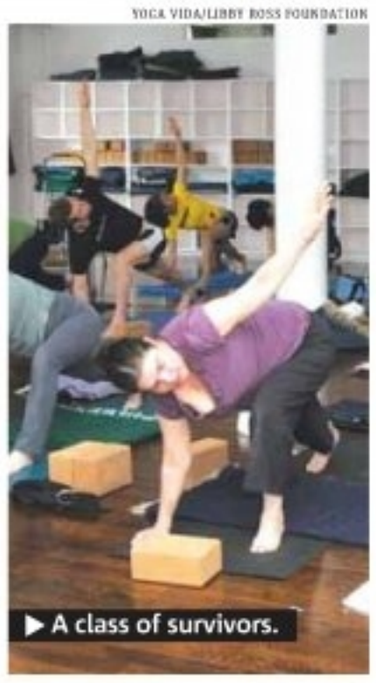
Free yoga classes available to women currently fighting cancer and survivors ◆ Breathing techniques and yoga poses can aid cancer recovery, says director

Yoga studios may be as ubiquitous as coffee shops in New York City, but finding a class specifically tailored to cancer patients and survivors is not so easy.

The Libby Ross Breast Cancer Foundation stepped in to fill that void last month with the introduction of Pose for Pink, a series of free yoga classes for both cancer survivors and those currently battling the disease.

"Studies show the use of yoga, breath work and asanas [yoga positions] help speed and aid recovery while undergoing treatment," program director Lindsey Pearson told Metro.

YOGA VIDA/LIBBY ROSS FOUNDATION



▶ A class of survivors.

Weekend class

The next free Pose for Pink yoga class is this Saturday, Oct. 29, from 12:30 p.m. to 2 p.m. at Yoga Vida NYC at 666 Broadway.

The free classes are offered twice a month, typically on the second and fourth Saturday of every month at Yoga Vida in Manhattan. The Pose for Pink classes are open to women with all types of cancer, not just breast cancer.

Instructor Amanda Murdock said many cancer survivors feel like their bodies have turned against them and the exercise helps them connect again.

"It's not about the yoga," she said. "It's about the women getting in touch with their bodies and healing."

The organization is run completely by volunteers.

"We're building strength and community until someone finds a cure," Pearson said.

Lifeline thrown to homeowners in over their heads

U.S. homeowners who owe more than their properties are worth got new help yesterday when a U.S. regulator expanded a government program in a step that could help up to 1 million borrowers.

The Federal Housing Finance Agency, which oversees mortgage finance giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac, eased the terms of a refinancing program that helps so-called underwater borrowers who have been on time with payments but are unable to refinance.

The overhaul, which would only help a fraction of the 11 million underwater borrowers, is the latest effort to deal with a problem at the center of the economy's weak recovery — the crippled housing market. Officials have been frustrated that numerous efforts to bolster the market had little success.

"Such modifications are no panacea, but they would move us in the right direction for housing-related stimulus for the economy."
JANAKI RAO, VP FOR MORTGAGE RESEARCH AT MORGAN STANLEY

FHFA said it was scrapping a cap that prohibited borrowers whose mortgages exceeded 125 percent of their property's value from participating in the Home Affordable Refinance Program for loans backed by Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac.

It also took steps to encourage more banks to participate and coax homeowners into shifting into shorter-term loans.

The Obama administration sees lowering mortgage payments as a way to free up cash for other spending that could help support the economy's tepid recovery, and FHFA said it wanted to focus on loans made between 2004-2008, when borrowers typically locked into rates above 5 percent. Currently, 30-year fixed mortgage rates are hovering just above 4 percent. REUTERS

Netflix feels the sting of defections

Netflix lost more customers than it anticipated in the third quarter and warned of still more defections to come — pushing its shares down almost 20 percent as the one-time Wall Street star grapples with the fallout from a price hike and other unpopular moves.

Netflix said it had lost more than 800,000 U.S. subscribers in the third quarter, more than the about 600,000 it had forecast in September. Total U.S. subscribers stood at 23.8 million. REUTERS

Digging for earthquake survivors

Rescuers searched the rubble of collapsed buildings yesterday for survivors and victims of a major earthquake that killed at least 279 people and injured more than 1,300 in mainly Kurdish southeast Turkey.

Almost 1,000 buildings collapsed, according to the U.N. disaster agency.

Rescue and relief efforts focused on the city of Van and the town of Ercis, but hundreds were also feared dead in remote villages of mud-brick houses after Sunday's 7.2 magnitude quake, Turkey's strongest in a decade.

Desperate survivors cried for help beneath heaps of smashed concrete and twisted metal, some using mobile phones to tell friends they were alive, as earth-moving machines and troops raced against time.

Thousands of people made homeless by the quake were forced to spend a second night outdoors, enduring near-freezing temperatures. REUTERS

Gaddafi on display: Democracy at work?

MISRATA, LIBYA. A day after Libyans declared a "liberation" that consigned Muammar Gaddafi to the "garbage bin of history," hundreds again filed past his rotting corpse in a grim display that has raised questions about the nation's new direction.

While their Western allies were expressing quiet unease, rebel factions were still wrangling over the body and power. In Misrata yesterday, fighters handing out surgical masks against the stench were still ushering hundreds of sightseers into the chill room where the bodies of Gaddafi, his son Mo'tassim and his former army chief lay on the floor, their flesh darkening and leaking fluids. LONDON. WikiLeaks will have to stop publishing secret cables and devote itself to fundraising if it is unable to end a financial "blockade" by U.S. firms such as Visa and MasterCard by the end of the year, founder Julian Assange said yesterday.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Licensed, Bonded & Insured

We are licensed, bonded and insured in all cities and towns in which we conduct business.

Help the Environment

Using recycled precious metals for jewelry is an important way for jewelers to source precious metals more responsibly. Precious metals that have already been used in some way, including "vintage," "renewed," or "reclaimed" metals from jewelry and electronics, are not directly implicated in the destructive impacts of mining. They do not share responsibility for the impacts of mining in the same way that newly mined gold does.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

The feed ...

Checking in with some of Hollywood's biggest names to see what they've been up to — in their own words, in 140 characters or fewer.

Zooey Deschanel is happy with her purchases, Alec Baldwin has a case of Brad Pitt envy, Rob Lowe is globe-hopping, and Jeffrey Ross is having second thoughts.

▶ @ZooeyDeschanel to the person who invented online shopping: THANK YOU.

▶ @AlecBaldwin I wanna be Brad for a day. No. A week. No. Make that a decade.

▶ @RobLowe Taking off for a mad dash to Qatar on Miramax business.

▶ @realjeffreyross Starting to regret naming my dog Moammar.

Deschanel

Talking points

Ellen and Portia won't be doing babies

Ellen DeGeneres and Portia de Rossi won't be starting a family anytime soon, the talk-show host says in her new book, "Seriously ... I'm Kidding." "People are constantly asking Portia and me if we are going to have children. We thought about it. We love to be around children after they've been fed and bathed. But we ultimately decided that we don't want children of our own. There is far too much glass in our house," DeGeneres jokes, before going on to explain the the couple have a veritable menagerie of pets at their L.A. home and on their farm.

Madonna's homeless bro

Madonna's second oldest brother, Anthony Ciccone, is homeless and living under a bridge in Traverse City, Mich., he tells local news site The Michigan Messenger. "My family turned their back on me, basically, when I was having a hard time," the 55-year-old says. "You think I haven't answered this kind of question a bazillion times — why my sister is a multi-bazillionaire and I'm homeless on the street? Never say never. This could happen to anybody." Ciccone says his troubles started when he lost his job at his father's Suttons Bay winery more than a year ago.

Pattinson rocks a goatee in Paris

WWW.METRO.US/WORD
DOROTHY ROBINSON'S WORD BLOG

Quit playing games with my heart, Robert Pattinson's facial hair.

These photos of the star sporting various beards and goatees over the weekend are the photographic equivalent of putting ketchup on a fine cut of filet mignon: Why ruin such perfection?

On Saturday, the star was snapped with a full beard and, might I say, horrific sunglasses (was he going for the "chubby John Lennon" look?) at the Roissy Charles de Gaulle Airport in Paris, where he met up with "Twilight" co-star Ashley Greene. The two are in town to do promotion for the latest tween blood-sucking installment of "The Twilight Saga: Breaking Dawn — Part 1."

Luckily, on Sunday night he cleaned up for the red carpet for the film's Paris premiere by shaving his beard down to a goatee (he also donned a sleek Dolce and Gabbana suit, which helped). That goatee, we ladies can live with. But if you go full-on Brad Pitt/Mark Twain goatee, we're going to have to talk, Robert.

▶ Do not let this happen to you, Robert.

Winslet: First bra, then granny

For Kate Winslet, first goes the bra, then goes the old people. It seems that in an emergency, the actress' first instinct is to cover up (she is British, after all).Winslet revealed that when she awoke on Richard Branson's private island to find the house on fire in August, she thought, "'Now what do I do?' So I ran into the bedroom and put on a bra," she says in an interview with talk-show host Graham Norton. "In disastrous moments like that, you do the strangest things. I started to put on a bra and thought, 'No, that's going to take me too long,' so off came the bra, on came the T-shirt, then I grabbed the children and I picked up granny." Winslet is credited for carrying Branson's 90-year-old mother, Eve, to safety as the compound was destroyed by the blaze.

The latest in the young adult series 'Beautiful Creatures' takes you into a magical world of mystique

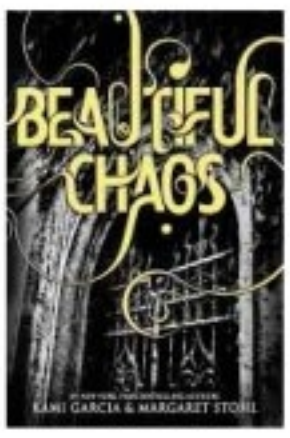
letters@metro.us

Now that Harry Potter is no more, authors everywhere are trying to out-charm one another with their own brand of literary magic to fill that mystical, money-making void. Amidst the chaos are best friends and co-authors Kami Garcia and Margaret Stohl, whose own young adult saga, "Beautiful Creatures," is battling its way to the top. The series, in the fictional southern town of Gatlin during the Civil War era, is an epic tale chronicling the forbidden love between Ethan and Lena, which suffers from Ethan's "curse."

In their third installment, "Beautiful Chaos," out now, Garcia and Stohl bring more dark powers and twisty plot lines to the books. In fact, the whole series has been a thrilling tale filled with danger and drama — yet at the same time, it's beautifully poetic (they use a great deal of classic poems and literary quotes). This is due to the authors' immense love and appreciation for classic literature.

The plot

In "Beautiful Chaos," Ethan Lawson Wate and Lena Duchannes come back to Gatlin after their last adventure to the magical world, where Lena changed the universe when she claimed herself to be both a Light and Dark Caster (in mortal words: she has become a both good and evil magician).



"We love all the great classics and the poems; and when we are writing, it feels natural to add them into our story," Garcia explains. "They have been a great influence."

A healthy dose of classic literature is not the only motif dominant in the "Beautiful Creatures" series. The themes of rejection and acceptance are constantly explored, examined and elaborated.

"Adults still feel like teenagers trying to fit in, and the pressure is even greater for the teenagers. They are afraid of being rejected and are always trying to find a place in their own lives," Stohl says.

"So we want to send them a message to 'claim yourself' and just be the person you really are," Garcia adds.

3 Memorable moments in undead evolution

Vampires didn't just pop out of the grave with sparkling skin and movie deals Dracula expert Leslie Klinger takes us through the history of blood suckers

1: Backwoods monsters

More otherworldly pests than romantic immortals, vampires have their roots in folklore and were often blamed for missing animals and other problems in the village. "Vampires used to be monsters," explains Klinger. "You'd staple decaying Uncle George back into the casket and hope he'd go away."

2: Despised aristocrats

In his latest book, "In the Shadow of Dracula," Klinger explores vampire stories that influenced Bram Stoker's "Dracula," which starred a member of the next-generation of smoother talking, wealthy vamps who took bloodsucking to another level. "When the vampire becomes an aristocrat," explains Klinger, "he becomes a metaphor for those who live and feed off of other people."

3: Teen idols

Once Drac entered show business, the jump from creepy rich guy to "Twilight" heartthrob was just a matter of time. "The whole change of the vampire started to take place in the 1920s. Dracula is still basically a monster, Nosferatu is disgusting. But then we had the play adaptation of 'Dracula,' and he's wearing an opera cloak with slick black hair. That was adopted for the movies, and there was no going back."

CANT can make you forget that other band he's in

'Dreams Come True' for Chris Taylor • Artist discusses the difference between his side project and Grizzly Bear

When Chris Taylor began working with publicists to promote CANT, his new side project, he contemplated not putting the name of his other band in the biography.

"I didn't really see how people having that connection, between Grizzly Bear and this project, would be helpful," he says. "I had to trust people who do this stuff — press, my manager — because if I can't trust them, I shouldn't have hired them in the first place. They just said, 'No, we should definitely do that, it's inevitable, people are obviously going to know it's you and it seems silly if you try and pretend. It'll just make you look silly."

If you go

CANT
Tonight, 8
Bowery Ballroom
6 Delancey St.
$15, 212-533-2111
www.boweryballroom.com

▶ Chris Taylor CANT always get what he wants.

To be sure, Taylor does not look silly. And CANT's recently released debut, "Dreams Come True," is a force to be reckoned with, albeit a dark force. Where Grizzly Bear is harmonic and folky, CANT is electronic and moody. It's as if one is a consequence of the other.

"When I got out of touring and recording — and production work in the meantime — which was six or seven years, I realized I had sacrificed a lot of personal relationships," he says.

'Face fears'

It's not as if Taylor has nothing to show for the time that he was neglecting his personal relationships. In addition to playing bass and producing Grizzly Bear albums, he has produced critically acclaimed albums by Twin Shadow and the Morning Benders, and he recently started his own label, Terrible Records. But with "Dreams Come True," he confronts his decisions head-on.

"The whole idea of the record is sort of to deal with stuff, and face fears, and not shy away from them, especially the more scary ones," he says.

ELIZABETH ZIMMER
elizabeth.zimmer@metro.us

In 1988, as many of the best and brightest in New York's performance community were struggling with AIDS, unclassifiable theater artist John Kelly unveiled his version of the myth of Orpheus and Eurydice.

"Find My Way Home" is set in the Great Depression, with Orpheus (Kelly) as a singer invited to entertain some hard-edged plutocrats and Eurydice (Kyle de Camp) as a maid who survives her grim situation by listening to the singer's voice emanating from the radio. She winds up, Cinderella-like, in his arms.

With his ineffable skill, Kelly assembles a pastiche score ranging from Gershwin and Porter to the great operatic strains of Gluck and Verdi. Though much of the music is performed (by Kelly himself, on recordings and by a live ensemble of singers, a cellist and a pianist) in languages other than English, we somehow always know what's going on.

No sooner have the lovers found each other than Eurydice dies in an accident; Orpheus blindly pursues her, winding up first in the purgatory of a marathon dance contest and then in the Underworld, which looks mightily like a Paris cabaret. The moment he locates her the inevitable happens: He looks her in the eye and loses her forever.

Between the original production and the present revival, the stage has quadrupled in size and the theater capacity doubled. We're no longer on top of the action — and the new distance, oddly, seems to slow it down. But Kelly's vision still packs an emotional punch, the cast is pitch-perfect and the issues explored — class distinctions, conspicuous consumption and premature death — could not be more timely.

Made you blush

Benetint, Jean and Jane Ford's secret weapon, is the No. 1 best-selling lip and cheek stain in the world. The ladies originally developed the product in 1977 for an exotic dancer who wanted something she could put on her nipples to make them rosy. Now until the end of February, the original bottle of Benetint is on display at the NYC boutique.

Mama said

Maggie Ford Danielson shares the beauty advice her mom gave her.

1 "Always take your makeup off. She said, 'You can sleep in your jeans, just don't sleep in your makeup.'"

2 "Drink tons of water. I'm notoriously bad."

3 "One of the funniest things my mom said is: 'A lady should be able to put on lipstick without looking in the mirror.' I can't do it! But there's a really feminine, fun aspect about that."

COURTESY OF BENEFIT

Benefit opens doors in NYC

Girls just want to have fun — and the perfect brows. No one knows this better than Benefit Cosmetics, the San Francisco-based brand created by twin sisters Jean and Jane Ford in the 1970s that's known for its quirky packaging, cult products (a bottle of their hugely popular Benetint is literally sold every minute) and killer brow services.

Now, Benefit is helping NYC ladies achieve the perfect arches with the recent opening of their New York flagship store in SoHo. Inside the two-story, 2,000-square-foot West Broadway girly emporium, floral wallpaper, glam chandeliers and pink vanities lend the space a Barbie's boudoir feel. Perky aestheticians are ready to play dress up with you — don't worry about making an appointment, walk-ins are welcome — and offer services ranging from brow-shaping and lash-tinting to waxing and airbrush tanning.

Since Jean and Jane are based on the West Coast, Jean's daughter Maggie Ford Danielson, now the brand's Global Beauty ambassador, gave us the tour.

"Here it's all about being in touch with your feminine side, but also being modern and saying, 'I'm not just a frilly girly girl — I can be edgy and fun,'" she says.

We have always been at war ...

RE: "OBAMA HATES AMERICA?": Thank you! That was just what I needed to start off the week: A good laugh. It's nice to know that we still have people creative enough to write old-fashioned Orwellian double-speak.
KARL HUFFMAN, VIA E-MAIL

I couldn't help but notice that the rich are actually writing letters to Metro these days! Lets look at Mr. Dupont, for example: He's reduced to making wild, exaggerated accusations about our president instead of helping us find solutions to this lopsided wealth issue! But that's exactly what we're going to see more of. The wealthy defending themselves by posing as normal citizens that don't agree with OWS!
VICTOR ROBINSON, VIA E-MAIL

Protesters are not legislators

RE: "DEMANDS: YES OR NO?": To those who say that the Occupy Wall Street movement should suggest improvements to the economic system, I would quote that celebrated conservative Samuel Johnson: "You may scold a carpenter who has made you a bad table, though you cannot make a table. It is not your trade to make tables."
ROBERT B. PIERCE, VIA E-MAIL

Why the bias against OWS?

RE: "HAVES, HAVE NOTS OF OCCUPY": Metro's biased coverage of Occupy is embarrassing. Any organization that attracted thousands of dollars in four weeks should be acknowledged as a mainstream movement. But Metro describes the donations as "handouts."
JAMES M. WILTON, VIA E-MAIL

About time for a third party

OWS is a sign that we need a third political party. It looks like Democrats and Republicans have the same lobbyists — so why vote?
WILLY MACHAN, VIA E-MAIL

Show respect to the people

RE: "PROTESTS LIGHTING A FIRE": Wow, Michael McGovern thinks the Occupy protesters should set themselves on fire? How can he waste all that hate by directing it toward people who are trying to make the world a better place? JEN GORDON, VIA E-MAIL

Self-immolation is not funny. Suggesting someone do it does not make you clever. SCOTT KEELEY, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. In order to use your imagination to visualize successful outcomes, you'll have to wipe out all pessimistic thoughts that attempt to disrupt you.
♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. It's OK to be a dreamer, as long as you're a realistic dreamer. Conjure up some logical steps and procedures that'll get you what you want.
♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. When it comes to a competitive situation in which you're involved, you have two big benefits going for you. One is your persistence, and the other is the crowd rooting for you.
♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Use the same strategy once again that brought you a recent victory. There's no reason in the world why you can't be successful with it again.
♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Be a joiner, because it'll be some kind of joint endeavor that is likely to hold the greatest promise for you. Expand your efforts to include as many people as possible.
♈ Aries March 21-April 19. In order to make sure a partnership situation works out well, each party must be prepared to contribute to the effort. Stop worrying about how much the other is doing, and do your part.
♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Your earning possibilities will be proportionate to your contribution. If you want to make more money, figure out what you can do to bring this about.
♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Don't let slip any chance to further enhance a relationship that's extremely important to you. Seize with alacrity anything that can fortify what you already have going.
♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. You'll never be better equipped than you are at present to finalize a tedious project that has been a prolonged source of irritation. Get that unpleasant task out of the way once and for all.
♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. It's possible that you'll find yourself in a unique position to convey some critical information. Take advantage of what may never happen again.
♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. This may be one of those days when you won't be looking for anything special when you go shopping, but something quite unique that you'll love at first sight will find you.
♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. It's important to find the right key that'll motivate others to take a close look at a project or idea you're eager to promote. Come up with a material or emotional trigger to put the posteriors in the seats. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Pamper yourself

Check in at the Otesaga resort and let the relaxation begin. This historic hotel was built in 1909 and offers fine dining, grand ballrooms, a lounge, an 18-hole golf course, a heated pool and a terrace overlooking Lake Otsego. The hotel was once used as a school for girls and is said to be haunted with the pitter-patter of little feet and the laughter of children. "Ghost Hunters" once paid a visit to the resort and deemed the third and fifth floors to have the most supernatural presence. Don't worry though — they're said to be friendly spirits.

▶ Load up on apples, raspberries and pumpkins for a price you'd never see in a city grocery store.

Really get into the season with an apple-picking trip to Middlefield Orchard. Let your inner child run wild through the rows as you fill your bag with dozens of varieties of apples or hunt for pumpkins. Don't leave without sampling the homemade jams. www.middlefieldorchard.com

Eat like an aristocrat

Eat in Otesaga's main dining room for a formal five-course experience with dishes like New Zealand rack of lamb or veal Osso Bucco. Or head down to the Hawkeye Bar & Grill for Seafood Fra Diavlo or a casual burger and fries. Enjoy live music and dancing into the late night hours at Templeton Lounge.

Drink like a Belgian

Spend the afternoon tasting Belgian beers at Brewery Ommegang. Sample a range of ales from the light and crisp Witte to the dark and spicy Abbey. See how the beer is made on a tour or snack on moules and frites in the newly built Cafe Ommegang. www.ommegang.com

Get spooked

Head to the Farmer's Museum after dark for their Things That Go Bump in the Night ghost tour and let your imagination run wild. You can also take a walking candlelight ghost tour through Cooperstown and hear the eerie history of the town's oldest homes. Brave tour-goers will walk through the Christ Episcopal Church Graveyard. Make sure you look up into the trees — you never know what you might see. www.cooperstownghost.com, www.farmersmuseum.org

▶ Eli Manning and the Giants are coming off a big win against Buffalo — and a week to get healthy.

Giants hit restart

Big Blue comes back from their bye feeling fresh Now they have to bear down for toughest part of schedule Metro hands out pre-bye grades

The Giants enter the toughest part of their schedule with an advantageous record. But unlike previous campaigns, Big Blue is hoping to avoid yet another late-season flameout.

Head coach Tom Coughlin said before he sent his team off for its bye week, he reiterated the importance of understanding their situation and to not feel as if they've accomplished anything despite being in sole possession of first place.

"They got the message," he said. "I feel comfortable with that."

Quarterback Eli Manning got the message loud and clear and heeded Coughlin's words. He said the bye week came at a good time, as players should be returning healthy, and added he feels his team will be ready to tackle the tough part of their schedule.

"[We're] coming off a big win [and] it was good to get away from things," Manning said. "But we have to make sure we come back from things refreshed, legs under us, ready to continue to work hard, have a great week of preparation and get ready for Miami."

TONY WILLIAMS
sports@metro.us

Eli wants to work on third down

The biggest thing Eli Manning needs to work on so they can avoid another late-season collapse is his performance in clutch situations.

"I think we can definitely improve on third down [and not] get into as many third-and-long situations," Manning said. "It's really been the third-and-seven-plus where we're not as good as we need to be. Sometimes it's a bad decision by me or a bad route. … We just have to make sure we're sharp and consistent — and making sure we keep the ball in our hands."

The Giants are converting just 31 percent of their third-down opportunities.

METRO/TW

Giants grades ...

Offense
Statistically, the Giants haven't set the world on fire; but what they lack in sizzle they've made up for it in efficiency and taking great care of the ball.
Grade: B

Defense
They have been one of the most injury-ravaged units in the entire league, but Jason Pierre-Paul and Mathias Kiwanuka have been great.
Grade: B

Special teams
Special teams coordinator Tom Quinn has been under fire ever since the "Matt Dodge Game." Unfortunately, the return units have still been pedestrian.
Grade: C+

Coaching
Coughlin gets a nice grade to date but knows he won't be judged by his current 4-2 record. It'll go by how his team responds to its last 10 games.
Grade: B+

Giants camp: Do I know you?

Bye week brings back walking wounded at practice yesterday Prince, Tuck, Snee, Jacobs return to action

Yesterday at Giants camp looked a whole lot like coming back from summer vacation.

There is no question the story of the Giants season has been injuries. After fielding questions about the multitude of players returning to the practice field after the bye, head coach Tom Coughlin may finally be seeing the beginnings of a full roster.

"It is something that we have been looking for," Coughlin said. "I don't know if uplifting would be the word. It is a good sign to have guys out there. Hopefully we will have the consistency of all these guys practicing and it will give us extra gas in our tank."

Both the offensive and defensive lines should benefit from the time off — starting with two-time All-Pro defensive end Justin Tuck. Coughlin said he seemed significantly better, though reserved judgment on whether most of the injured players would return.

Guard Chris Snee may be the one player who is certain to return. Snee suffered a concussion against Seattle and has missed the last two games.

"Everything is fine," Snee said. "I passed all my tests last week and have been headache-free for over a week."

Unsurprisingly, Coughlin wasn't ready to admit to needing the time off himself though.

"The bye is where the bye is and I don't have anything to do with it," he said. "We take it as it is and we use it as a positive. Hopefully everybody comes back naturally refreshed."

Sunday outlook

A heaping of players returned to practice with the Giants yesterday, but who will actually play?

- DE Justin Tuck (groin/neck) Tuck might be the biggest piece the Giants have missed. Coughlin said he's markedly improved, but he's still a question mark.
- RB Brandon Jacobs (knee) Coughlin said the swelling in Jacobs' knee had gone down, so they are hopeful he'll play. But that will depend on if it stays down.
- OG Chris Snee (concussion) Coughlin's son-in-law is expected to play Sunday. He's been headache-free for over a week and passed all of the concussion tests.
- CB Prince Amukamara (foot) The rookie is still limited in practice and said he won't know if he'll play until Thursday or Friday. That's generally not a good sign.

Ballard takes torch from Boss at tight end

Former Ohio State star surprises by filling in for former fan favorite ● Manning finding confidence in him ● Earning comparisons to Shockey

If offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride was told prior to the season that unknown Jake Ballard would be the one to fill in for the defected Kevin Boss — not former high-round draft pick Travis Beckum — he'd have laughed.

But here it is in Week 8, and it's Ballard who has shocked and awed everyone in the facilities.

"I thought he would be a good blocker. You saw a big strong kid who could hold his own with defensive ends and outside linebackers," said Gilbride. "[But] the real surprise has been his ability to contribute in the passing game and catching the ball, [because] somehow he just gets open. ... He's taken basketball skills and size and applied them to his position."

"He reminds me a lot of Jeremy Shockey. ... He has a really good feel of what is going on around him."
MICHAEL POPE, TIGHT END COACH

The unassuming Ballard was on the practice squad all of last season and was thought of as a plodder because of his size (6-foot-6, 275 pounds), but quickly climbed the depth chart once Boss left via free agency to Oakland. Since becoming the go-to "receiving" tight end, Ballard has improved every week. His 15 catches ranks fifth on the team, while his 273 receiving yards ranks third — ahead of starting wideout Mario Manningham.

Ballard, who also has two touchdowns, has stayed humble.

"It's not really a shock," he said. "I've always had the confidence in myself and knew what I could do."

Earning the trust of such a respected and accomplished quarterback as Eli Manning wasn't easy, according to Ballard. Manning said his uneasiness to throw to the tight end has dissipated each passing day.

"Jake's done a great job," Manning said. "He's come in and he's worked hard."

Tebow, Ponder show glimpses of NFL's future

National analysis

Week 7 of the NFL was reminiscent of the Apple Computer commercial "1984," yet instead of shattering the perception of quarterback, the sledgehammer has only started cracking the mold. Young quarterbacks are breaking conventional wisdom and providing a possible glimpse into the future offenses of the NFL.

Let's be clear, only one of these young players statistically performed well on Sunday. Denver quarterback Tim Tebow completed only 48.8 percent of his passes, while Minnesota quarterback Christian Ponder completed a mere 40.6 percent. Tebow's first start of the season was an abysmal failure until he led a stirring comeback.

FOOTBALL NATION

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Tebow

The old NFL belief is that young quarterbacks should be mentored and fit the mold of your typical pocket passer. Carolina's Cam Newton, Ponder and Tebow have done neither. Meanwhile, the Oakland Raiders traded away every draft pick and then some for traditional veteran quarterback Carson Palmer. They were rewarded with a three interception performance.

A new era in offense may have begun.

Jets learning importance of winning on home turf

All the Jets needed was a little Snoopy on their side.

Since MetLife bought the naming rights to the facility formerly known as the New Meadowlands Stadium this past summer, the Jets have turned the stadium into a true home-field advantage. Sunday afternoon's comeback win over San Diego now makes the Jets 4-0 at home and has the team brimming with confidence.

Overcoming a 21-10 halftime deficit, the second time this season that the Jets have been behind at MetLife Stadium at halftime, is a sign that the Jets are feeling right at home in "The House that Snoopy Built."

WWW.METRO.US/SPORTS
READ EXTENDED VERSIONS OF ALL JETS CONTENT

"This is huge going into the bye, winning two straight, continuing to stay undefeated at home," LaDainian Tomlinson said. "We plan on going undefeated at home, winning all the home games and winning a few on the road. We've stayed true to form, we continue to take care of business at home."

In an AFC that looks like it will remain crowded until the season's final week, winning out at home gives the Jets an advantage.

"I want to tip my hat to our fans. I know we could barely communicate to each other, so obviously it had to be superhard for the Chargers to communicate. It was brutal. We were yelling and trying to get certain calls in, and it was rough," Rex Ryan said. "We talk about home-field advantage, and that was probably the difference in the game."

KRISTIAN DYER

McMichael trashes Jets

Chargers tight end Randy McMichael is not an admirer of Darrelle Revis.

After Sunday's loss, the veteran launched into an odd tirade about the Jets' defensive performance.

"Their secondary isn't anything," McMichael said. "It's our fault. It had nothing to do with anyone on their team."
